The Rightsizing Series: A monthly conversation about creating a home and a life that reflects what's becoming most important to you.

FIVE QUESTIONS THAT REVEAL WHAT MATTERS MOST TO YOU.

Most people think Rightsizing is about finding a smaller home.

That makes sense. After all, our homes shape how we spend our time, energy, and freedom.

But maybe Rightsizing isn't really about square footage. We believe it's about creating a home that better supports the life that's becoming more important to you.

For some, that's less responsibilities. For others, it's more travel or scaling back on the size of their home so they can finally buy that 2nd place down south. Or maybe it's creating a life with more purpose, having a larger community of friends, or is simply focused on spending more time with family.

Whatever it means to you, Rightsizing begins with understanding what matters most.

Here are five questions to discover what rightsizing means for you:

1. What would you like more of over the next five years?

a. Less responsibility

b. Travel/adventure

c. Friends/family time

d. Community/fun

e. Purpose

2. What do you want less of?

a. Worry

b. Responsibility

c. Home maintenance

d. Clutter

e. Indecision

3. What do you want to stay exactly the same?

a. My community of friends

b. Continuing hobbies

c. Owning instead of renting

d. Financial security

4. Which of these best describes the way you feel about your home today?

a. My home takes more time and energy than I'd like

b. My space/layout no longer fits the way I want and need to live

c. I'm ready for a new chapter, just not sure what it looks like yet

d. I love my home- but am curious whether it will always fit the life I want

5. Which of these rightsizing insights are worth remembering?

a. I wish I'd let myself be curious sooner

b. I almost let the thought of rightsizing feel so overwhelming that I never explored what was possible. I'm so glad I didn't!

c. Exploring my options gave me clarity, even before I made any decision

d. I never expected to be so excited about the possibilities

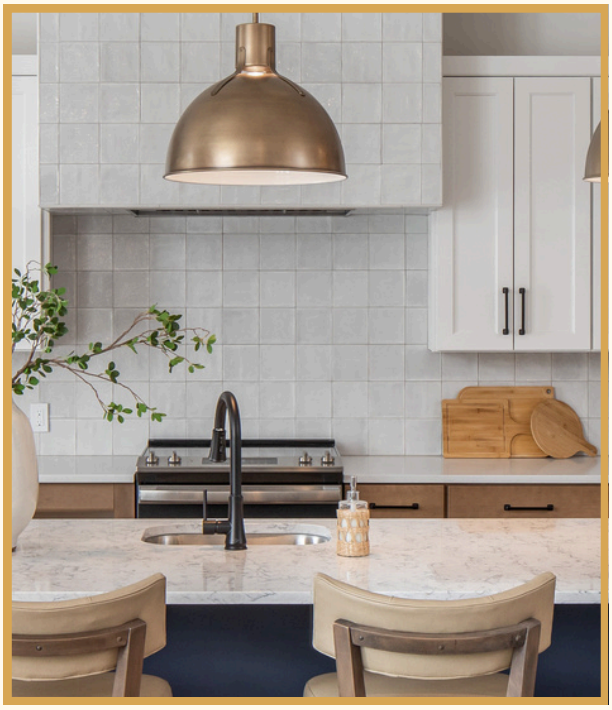

Your answers are telling you what matters most.

The real question is…does your home still support the life you're hoping to create?

If reading these questions makes you think, “Well…this feels like a lot”, you’re in good company.

For many people, the idea of Rightsizing feels overwhelming- not because they don’t want a different lifestyle, but because they don’t know where to begin.

So, don’t begin with a decision. Begin with a conversation.

Join us for one of our upcoming events. Ask questions. Explore your options. Leave with a little more clarity than you came with.

One small step today can move you closer to the life that’s becoming more important to you!
